LIBERTY NATIONAL First In Increase

Birmingham's Liberty National Life Insurance Co. was ranked number one among the 50 largest life insurance companies in the United States in 1960 in percentage increase of life insurance in force, a national survey revealed today. The increase figure stood at 19.4 per cent, compared with a 12.4 per cent increase during 1959.

Frank P. Samford Jr., is Liberty National president. The unusually large increase of insurance in force during 1960 ($325 million) was the result of a year-long campaign honoring Frank P. Samford Sr., who became Board Chairman of Liberty National at the end of last year. The campaign, which pushed Liberty National's insurance in force over the $2 billion mark, was directed by Executive Vice President Charles T. Clayton.

The national report, covering the more than 1,400 insurance companies in America, also revealed that Liberty National Life stood third in the nation during 1960 in percent of increase in assets, which rose from $289 to $320 million last year. At the end of this year the company ranked 42nd in assets among all U.S. companies, compared with 43rd in 1959.

Liberty National now has 83 district offices in six states and 2,768 employees.

posts with his labor and simple equipment. Early thinning for posts from pine stands supply a need on the farm, benefit young pine stands, and produce small income for the timber owner.

Elba Woodyard Buys $330,171 Worth Of Pulpwood In Year

The International Paper Co. alone bought over 21,000 cords of pulpwood during 1960 at its Elba woodyard at a total cost of $330,171, according to J. A. Smith, district supervisor, Troy field office.

International Paper Co. has bought wood from Coffee county for over 20 years and each year has called on landowners for more and more timber to meet expansion needs.

Nation's Challenge — "The International Paper Co. has a high regard for the landowners of Coffee county who have met the nation's challenge of state and local officials toward putting all the idle forest lands in Coffee county into full production.

This program spread to meetings with 4-H and FFA boys coupled with a free seeding program which encouraged landowners to plant idle acreage.

Such approval was given this program that within a few years wild forest fires were almost entirely under control and good forestry practices were beginning to put lands in full production. More and more products were sold each year.

Posts may be treated in industrial pressure treatment plants in small, open tanks owned by individuals, or in those provided through vocational, agricultural programs. The landowner can also treat

Ten to 20 million fence posts are needed in Alabama each year. The extensive acreages of young pine stands in the State are a good source of posts. Many stands become too dense for best diameter growth before reaching pulpwood size. The early thinning for post production becomes a desirable improvement practice. This practice produces income and shortens the time required to grow pulpwood and sawlogs.

Post Cutting — In 1961 a study of fence post production was begun at the Fayette Experiment Forest of the Auburn Agricultural Experiment Station. Dense planted stands 10 years old and natural stands 15 to 25 years old were selected for the study. Post yields from four different methods in two stand classes were compared on the basis of production and costs.

Two-man crews, when cutting or loading, proved to be more economical than three-man crews. The use of a power saw resulted in greater production at less cost than the use of a bow saw. Thinning in plantations resulted in greater production per man-hour than similar thinning in natural stands.

Post Peeling and Seasoning — For most effective preservative treatment, posts need to be peeled and seasoned. One man can produce between 100 and 200 posts per day by hand peeling with an ax or draw knife. Or several methods of mechanical peeling, a drum-peeler is the most satisfactory for small operations. At the Fayette Experiment Forest, a stationary drum 3 and a half foot in diameter and 9 foot long was used. Over 600 posts were peeled per day. A time study showed that time lapse between cutting and peeling was a primary factor in determining the number of posts peeled per hour. Peeling efficiency decreased with each day that peeling was delayed. When posts were peeled the day of cutting the number per hour was 110. Twelve days after cutting the rate reduced to 84 posts per hour. The cost per post for peeling increased from 13 cents to 27 cents during this period.

Rough, crooked, and knotty posts that were poorly trimmed did not peel as well as clean, straight posts. Loading the drum to slightly more than a half of capacity produced the best results. Peeling during the winter months and during drought periods lengthened peeling time.

Efficient peeling did not begin until a week after spring growth became evident and ended after 3 or 4 weeks of constant dry weather regardless of season. The best time for peeling was from April 1 to August 1 of the growing period.

Marketing — The demand in Fayette county is for posts 3 to 4 in. in diameter and 6 ft. long. Clean, straight posts are preferred. It is desirable to obtain treating plants' specifications for posts before harvesting posts for sale. Peeled posts 2 and a half to 3 in. in diameter, 6 ft. long sell for 15c each and 7-ft. posts bring 20c when delivered to local industrial plants. Post prices will average 5c per in. of diameter FOB the plant, untreated.

Posts may be treated in industrial pressure treatment plants in small, open tanks owned by individuals, or in those provided through vocational, agricultural programs. The landowner can also treat

THE WOOD IN YOUR LIFE

Just about everything but the mailbox has changed down on the farm. Mechanization, soil conditioning, certified seed, purebred livestock — all are here and they're here to stay. Scientific farming is the rule rather than the exception in RFD America. Part of this new look is tree farming — growing and harvesting continuing timber crops for use and sale.

Alabama Leads Nation In New Tree Farm Acreage

Forest Products Second Largest State Industry

The South in 1960 led the nation in Tree Farm activity, and in the South, Alabama was by far the leading Tree Farm state in new Tree Farm acreage.

John O. Batson, chairman of the Alabama Forest Industries Committee, local sponsor of the American Tree Farm System, reported more than two thirds of the new Tree Farms certified in the nation last year were in the South. Foresters in the South inspected 1,827 new Tree Farms while the national gain in Tree Farms was 2,029. The South accounted for 2,169,462 of the new acres in Tree Farms, two thirds of the national increase of 3,524,709 acres.

Mississippi Leads — Only one state in the South showed a greater increase in Tree Farms in 1960 than Alabama. That was Mississippi with 554 new Tree Farms.

However, those Mississippi privately owned, taxpaying holdings amounted to 161,708 acres as compared to the 700,000 acres netted by the 200 new Tree Farms in Alabama.

Batson cited the dedication of the 30 Millionth Tree Farm Acre near Atmore, Ala., May 18, 1960, as primary influence in new Tree Farm activity.

The festivities held at Little River State Park that day, honoring Kimbrell B. Cunningham as owner of the historic Tree Farm Acre, were highlighted by the certification of 125,000 acres of new Tree Farms. These certifications permitted Alabama for 60 days to enjoy the title of No. 1 Tree Farm State in the nation in total acres in Tree Farms.

Florida Ahead — Florida, which lost the leadership temporarily, regained the honor which it held for the past three years. However, as 1960 came to a close, Florida remained only slightly ahead of Alabama in Tree Farm acreage—5,492,200 acres compared to Alabama's 5,400,579 acres.

A total of 19,341 Tree Farms in the nation Dec. 31 represented 54,524,850 acres of private woodlands being managed not only for continued crops of timber but also for the multiple benefits of soil, water, wildlife and recreation.

Speakeading the Tree Farm movement in Alabama is its veteran Tree Farm chairman, Marion C. Leach of Alford, Ala. Leach, a common, who, strange as it may seem, lives just across the border in Georgia, Fla., but works almost entirely in the forest lands of South Alabama.

Second To Minerals — Forest industries and tree farming in 1960 became the second largest segment of the economy of Alabama — second only to minerals.

Batson said lumber, paper, and furniture account for 11.5 per cent of the income from manufacturing in Alabama. One person in every five employed in the state's industry earns his living working in some phase of forest industry.

Thousands more — employed by railroads, printing and publishing businesses and in the building trades — are at least in part dependent on forests and forest products for their livelihood.

Because of better forest management, not only on private lands, but also on public lands in Alabama, the state's forests grow more wood than is being harvested. Tree planting by individuals and by industry have helped assure Alabama of retaining its most important renewable natural resource, timber.

For information on tree farming, write the Alabama Forest Industries Committee, Bellamy, (Sumter county), Forest Industries Committee, Ala., or see Gordon Drewery, Forest Ranger, Elba Court House.

Most Of 60 Forest Fires Started By Intent To Damage

Sixty forest fires swept a total of 1,364 acres of timberland in Coffee county during the fire season, October, 1960 to April 30, 1961, according to Gordon Drewery, forest ranger, Alabama Forestry Department.

Fires were caused by the following: brush burning, incendiary or purposely set, smokers, campfires, lumbering, railroads and lightning. Of all these causes, 90 per cent were purposely started by someone, Mr. Drewery said.

"It emphasizes the need for cooperation by farmers, campers and the public because every dollar lost in a wild fire is a dollar taken from the economy of Coffee county," he stated.

Mr. Drewery outlined that the key man in forest fire prevention is the man in the lookout tower. There is a tower at Damascus, another at Victoria, and another which serves both Coffee county and the Port Rucker area.

There are 265,000 acres of timberland in Coffee county of which 16,965 acres are certified Tree Farms by having met certain state regulations, according to Mr. Drewery.

Flack Employs 60 People At Plant

Flack Lumber Co. is ready market for forest products in Coffee county and provides employment to 60 people at its plant.

In addition to those at the plant, it provides indirect employment for another 100 people from whom it buys pulpwood and unfinished lumber.

The mill has been in operation in Elba 15 years and produces approximately ten million feet of lumber a year.

Small grain for grain or for grazing should be topped by March 1, with 50 pounds of nitrogen per acre, says The Progressive Farmer.

Green forests are an American heritage. Picnics in the woods—the tangy smoke of a carefully watched campfire—hiking—hunting—all are part and parcel of healthful outdoor recreation to millions every year. Americans can both use and keep their forests always if they protect them from fire and harvest them wisely.

CONSERVATION, GOOD TURN

Young America has an intelligent concern for forests and related resources — soil, water, and wildlife.

We are proud of the young people of this community who are learning to appreciate the real meaning of conservation.

Real conservation permits forests to produce continuing crops of trees. This is tree farming.

Flack Lumber Company provides continuous employment to 60 people and is a ready market for the purchase of logs, unfinished lumber and pulpwood thus providing indirect employment for at least another 100 people.

Flack Lumber Company has been an Elba industry, contributing to business life through its payroll and purchase of raw products, for 15 years. In that 15-year period Flack Lumber Company has produced approximately 10 million feet of lumber each year on an average, and owns tree farms in Coffee county.

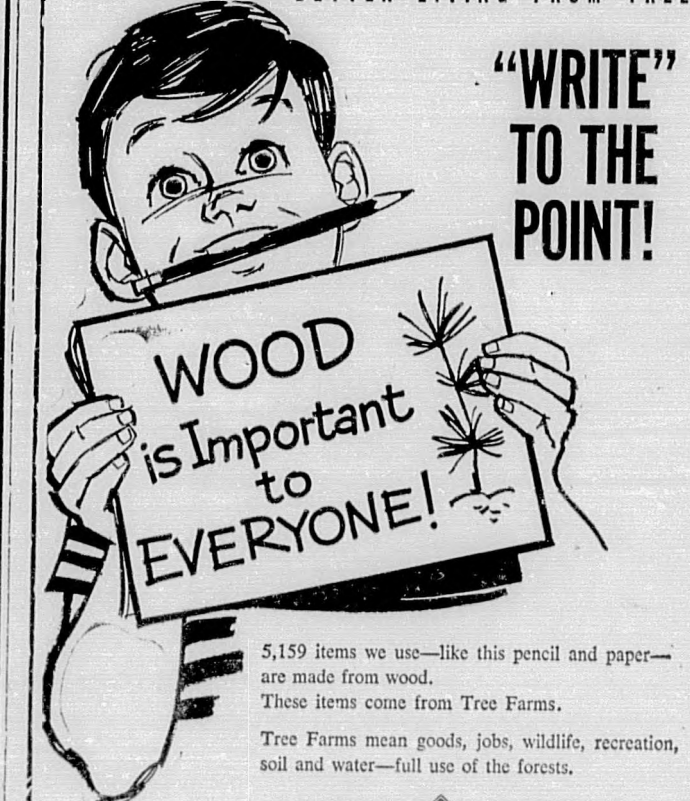

See J. A. Galimore if you have logs, pulpwood, unfinished lumber for sale.

4-H CLUB EVENTS

BY TOM CASADAY

Assistant County Agent

Johnny Lolley of the Goodman Senior 4-H Club and Jerry Barnes and Ray Donaldson of the Curtis Junior Club have written excellent essays on farm-home safety. Jerry wrote on Safety in the Home, and Johnny wrote on Automobile Safety. Ray concentrated on both farm and home safety.

Even though only two boys will be awarded trophies at the 4-H Club essay contest, the boys' good work will be appreciated.

Gibbs McCormick of New Brockton, member of the Alabama 4-H Club, will make the awards.

We had to change the place for the Talent Contest from the Elba high school auditorium to the Enterprise high school auditorium Friday night, May 5. So as things new stand the talent contest and apron, dress, and skirt review will be held Friday night, May 5 in the Enterprise High School Auditorium. Principal Oscar Zeannh pointed out a few days ago that the auditorium is air conditioned and should be perfectly comfortable even though the weather may be hot by that time and I hope it is.

Each club will enter the contest which means that there will be about 30 different talent numbers. This program along with the Apron, Dress, and Skirt Review should make for the most enjoyable evening.

IT'S FOR YOU

When someone says, "It's for you," our minds begin to buzz with questions. Who is it? What do they want? Good news? Bad news? Work? Pleasure?

It's for you! Commanding words that summon our immediate attention. And those words apply as well to the Church as they do to a telephone call.

The Church is for you! Its services of worship, its program of religious education, its comforting ministrations in time of spiritual crisis... all for you!

And the Church has a vital message—good news for a discouraged world. It has a glorious work before it—a happy fellowship for men, women, and children of noble purpose.

The Church deserves your support. It's for you!
